DR. W. I. SEYMOUR, THE EYE SPECIALIST

There is no more popular man in the west today than the subject of this sketch, Dr. W. I. Seymour, now permanently located at 1219 K street, Lincoln, Neb. Dr. Seymour has given his life to the study of the eye and while yet a young man in years, his equal in the master of his profession has not been heard of. He has spent vast sums of money in travel, visiting not only the most famous sections in this country but his touring in foreign lands has given him an opportunity that is sought after by many but accomplished by but few. Personally the doctor is a pleasing man to meet and get acquainted with. He is of a sympathetic disposition and his legion of patients bear witness to his ability in the cure of the eye. He personally superintends every case and the cures that have been accomplished are most phenomenal. He stands before the professional world without a peer in his line. He is surrounded with every convenience and the latest inventions for testing the condition of the eye, and a visit to his suite of palatial offices at 1219 K street, Lincoln, Neb., will satisfy you that his mode of treatment is based upon scientific principles and a thorough knowledge of the needs of his patients. If your eyes are weak or failing, don't delay, but write him of their condition. He will truthfully tell you what is best to do and he has never been known to misjudge.

A TRIO OF SKILLED SCIENTISTS

The accompanying illustration shows the likenesses of Dr. W. I. Seymour, Dr. W. Calvert Cox, and Dr. James C. Ross (the latter at the head of the Chicago office), and also the permanent headquarters in Lincoln, which are in Philadelphia; Assistant Surgeon Philadelphia Orthopedic Hospital and Infirmary for Nervous Diseases; Professor of Orthopedic Surgery Philadelphia Polytechnic; Instructor Rush Medical College, Chicago; attending Oculist and Aucated at 1219 K street. These three men are the most noted and successful in their respective lines in the west and we dare say their superiors are not in the United States. Dr. Cox, who is permanently located with Dr. Seymour in Lincoln, graduated in 1870 from the University of Pennsylvania, since which time he has held responsible positions as follows: Resident surgeon Wills Eye Hospital, Central Free Dispensary, Chicago; Professor of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Chicago Clinic. Dr. Cox's diagnosis of diseases of the nerve center is scientific and scrupulously correct. He does not take a case he cannot cure. He has living testimonials in the curing of cross eyes and the restoring of sight to the almost blind. If you are afflicted write Dr. Seymour, 1219 K street, Lincoln, Neb.

A NINETEENTH CENTURY WONDER

Our readers have had a feast in reading of the wonderful success of that eminent eye specialist, Dr. W. I. Seymour, of Lincoln. With his remarkable natural skill and trained teaching, combined with and surrounded by the most approved and perfect apparatus there is little wonder of his marvelous work. The accompanying illustration is, to use a common expression, an eye-tester. With it every optical defect can be discovered—no matter in what condition the eye may be—and glasses adjusted, which, when worn, will ultimately cure the defects, and from the start ease the eye to its natural state, thus affording the wearer all the comforts enjoyed by those with perfect sight. If your eyes are inclined to
